Foreword

In presenting the 1942 La Reata, we have surveyed your myriad activities and pictorially secured them for you against the fleeting moments of memory; we have shown the balanced relationship of social, organizational, and curricular life; we have mirrored the whimsical and contemplative moments of life at Salinas Junior College.

In Appreciation

Of the Werners who have inspiringly contributed of their person, their time, and their faith in the all-around development of the college that it might fulfill its mission of educating youth in the democratic ways of life. La Reata is honored in conveying this sincerity of expression from an appreciative student body.

Faculty

More than academic teachers, more than curricula advisers, are the members of the Junior College faculty. Not only are they vitally interested in the progress of the student during his school career, but also in his future success after graduation. Without their belief that our goals could be reached, very few of the many outstanding achievements of the past year would have been realized.

La Reata

PAT J. ADCOCK

SID PETERMAN

The leadership of the La Reata was assumed by Sid Peterman and Pat Adcock who edited the book aided by a selected staff under the advisership of Mr. Borough. The book this year was "streamlined" by the omission of long and unimportant writing. A "picture book," in the true sense of the word, may accurately describe the 1942 edition. The important role of photographer was filled by George Lee, advised by Mr. McCallum. Cecilia Conrado and Gloria Dillard were in charge of the graduate section. Takeo Isobe was responsible for the special art work. The personnel of the Editorial Techniques class provided the copy. The engravings were done by the Oakland National Engraving Company, and the printing by the Hooper Printing Company, San Francisco.

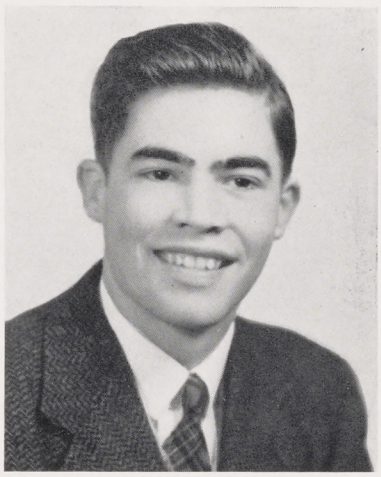
Battery



Frank McMillan

Mildred Burns

Headed by resourceful and capable Frank MacMillan, who wielded the editorial reins, the Battery staff put out a comprehensive, relevant report on the weekly functions of the Student Body. Several extra-page editions were printed during the year. These editions featured layouts sprinkled liberally with spot pictures taken during the week to depict student activities. The sports department was handled by Fred Weybret and Don Wells who was the staff's all-around man. Features were covered by Cecilia Conrado and Dorothy Owens, while Frances Nelson took care of the exchanges. Martha Rudd and Billie Burns were advertising managers. The staff members were Howard Gaba, Keith Perkins, Terry Jones, and John Buckley. Mr. Cassady was the faculty adviser.

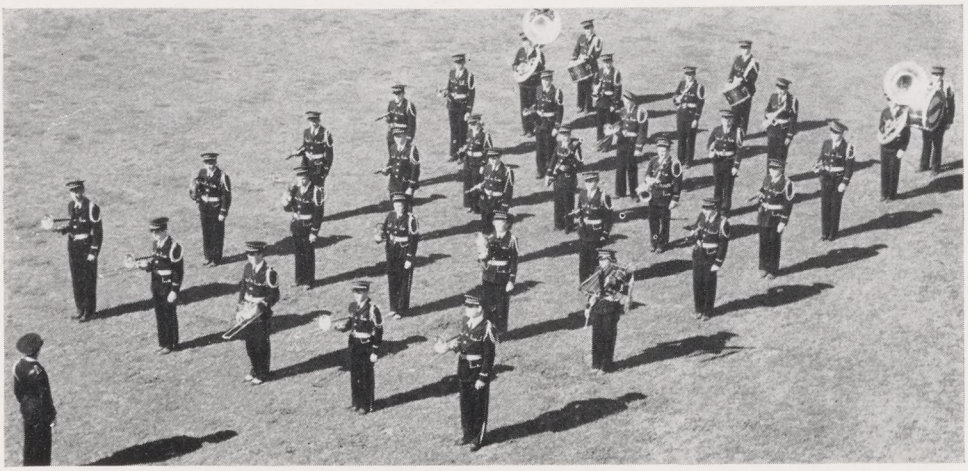
Majorettes and Band

Springing full-grown from the head of its creator in the fall of 1940 and christened the world's largest Majorette Corps, the healthy brain child of Marsdon Sherman matured until it marched through the football season of 1942 in its full glory. At its coming of age the majorette group took up the theme of the warring world into which it was born and became a morale regiment in the front line of the mighty Panther army, a color guard in gold and white. General Dorothy Nagle, orderlies Ramelle Chester and Harriet Marshall, and the ranks of regulars and recruits brought enlivened diversity and entertainment to the game during half-time periods. Many trick stunts were carried out in collaboration with the tumbling team. On Armistice Day at the game with the University of Nevada Frosh a grand denouement combined participation in a victory parade with all the superlative exhibitions of the season.



With every victory and with every defeat must come music. This famous corps of majorettes would have been without their color, without any special purpose had they not have been accompanied by the Junior College Band, whose tunes gave reason for their flamboyance. To mention them in cooperation with this corps is not sufficient; their part was much more important than that, for they created not a small part of the whole collegiate atmosphere. The success of this organization was due to the skill of its bandmaster, composer-director Lorell McCann.

Beggar on Horseback

Morse Ferguson

Making full use of the flagrant expressionism which its script invited, the cast of "Beggar on Horseback" presented to the public this spring one of the most unusual and subtly humorous plays yet to come out of the college's dramatics department. Principals among the play's characters were Neil McRae, destitute composer, enacted by Morry Ferguson, who injected into his role the tone of bewilderment proper for the dream-daze episode; Gladys Cady, dancing daughter, played by Mingdon Sheets, whose guitar-voiced, provocative, ever-presence finally led to her dream demise; and Jean Hull's characterization of Cynthia Mason, who lent sympathetic balance to the hectic dream life of Neil. Capable support to the top performers was given by Fred Kostaras, versatile doctor-dancer, Donald Wells, erratic business magnate, Marion Samuels, jazz-loving mother of Gladys, and Bob Clark, Gladys' hypochondriac brother. Additional mention must be made of the jury members, dancers, butlers, and art factory inmates, all of whom contributed to the colorful and fantastic disorder of the production.

Brass Ensemble

The Brass Choir, organized from the symphony orchestra, proved a splendid addition to the music groups. In particular this group served as a pleasurable asset to assembly programs, as well as an aperitif to community functions. Among its personnel we find the following musicians: cornets, Alva Andrus and Irvin Hall; French horns, Anita Axford, Doreen Martin, and Roy Dale; trombone, Jay Ballard; baritone, Allen Stewart; and basses, Major Short and Edwin Culver.

Singing Ensemble

Anita Miller Pat Ann Adcock Marjorie Murphy Marion Samuels Francis Miller

Music for their own pleasure and for those who have been privileged to hear them, has constituted the activities of the Junior College Singing Ensemble. During the past year they have entertained the Parent Teachers' Associations, the Danish Lutheran Guild, the Student Body, receiving plaudits in all for their performances. The highlight of their annual agenda was their appearance on the Commencement Program.

Covering a wide range of symphonic arrangements during the season, the Salinas Junior College orchestra, despite the handicap of having a scarcity of string players in the school, achieved an excellent combination of instrumentation. The year's work in polyphonic training was demonstrated during "A Beggar on Horse Back," the commencement program, and particularly on a broadcast over a nation-wide hook-up for the dedication of the local U. S. O. building. Their annual concert on January 15, in the Little Theatre, was an achievement of mellifluous distinction.

A Capella

Replacing the traditional glee club organizations, the harmonious voices of the A Capella Choir, those talented in the art of unaccompaniment, became a synthesis of synchronization under the supple command of Miss Lowe. Throughout the year they choralled their rich resonance in a variety of entertaining programs. Outstanding among this series was the tour of the various high schools. They also appeared before the Salinas Women's Club, on various college programs, and were prominent at Sunday evening services in the local churches.

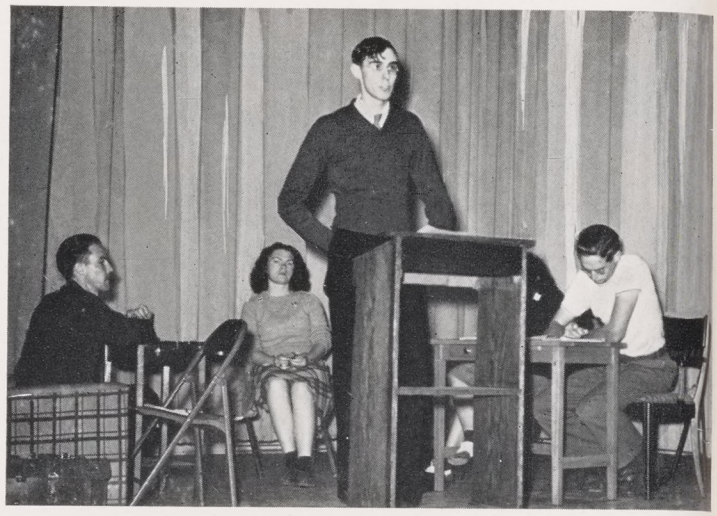
Debate



War furnished unbounded themes of discussion for the debating classes. Under the supervision of Miss Fraser, the Frosh and the Sophs mixed metaphors in the interclass debate. A debating conference was scheduled for the middle of April in which several schools participated. A tentative meet was also scheduled with St. Mary's College. Members of the debating team were Sid Peterman, Fred Kostaras, Tom Hearn, Bill Arnold, and Jean Barnard.

Social Activities

Fifteen different opinions on every subject kept the Social Activities Committee sparkling and made each social affair a striking success. Chairman Harold Coehlo served as peacemaker, bringing coherence to the wide variety of ideas. "Toyland" was the theme of this year's annual Winter Ball which the committee sponsored at Hotel Del Monte. Decorations by Eldon Dedini and music by Eddie Fitzpatrick made the ball a truly gala occasion. Numerous Friday night Mixer Dances were arranged, and the school year was brought to a brilliant close with the Spring Formal held in the Men's Gymnasium to the music of Al Davina.

Alpha Gamma Sigma

President, Carol Light
Vice-President, Charles Varner
Secretary, Dorothy Smith

There are poor students, average students, and members of Alpha Gamma Sigma. Membership is by invitation to students with high grade point averages. True to tradition, the Honor Society received and entertained Salinas Junior College alumni on Homecoming Day. Program for the day included a tea, dinner, and dance, with the Alpha Gamma Sigma Hospitality Committee playing host. Initiations for the spring and fall semester candidates were held at Dr. Hall's residence.

President, Wesley Hammond
Vice President, Marjorie Murphy
Secretary, Claire Ford

Aestheticism reigns supreme in the factory of artistic endeavor. The age of art appreciation was and will still be with us, as is evidenced by the enthusiasm witnessed in the environs of the Salinas Junior College. The art club members, all deeply appreciative of one of the world's oldest means of conveying an idea, spend a great deal of time and effort in its various media, including water colors, sculpturing, figure drawing, commercial art, charcoal and pencil drawing, and original designing.

Upsilon Gamma Chi

President, Betty Bingaman
Vice-President, Fordre Freitas
Secretary, Gail Borges

Reciprocating for their invitation to the Men's Club supper, the Upsilon Gamma Chi ended their school year of activities by treating the men to the annual picnic held in conjunction with Anniversary Day on March 27. Including all the women of the College this organization has cooperated endlessly with the Men's Club in promoting the spirit of friendliness which is an integral part of our campus life.

Vice President, Don Wells
Secretary, Morry Ferguson

Conforming to the traditions of Salinas Junior College, the high and mighty Men's Club celebrated the Sophomore Field Day victory with a semi-swank supper supervised and conducted by Art McChesney, club president, and his capable crew. This organization has the automatic membership of every male member of the school and is one of the main factors in promoting school spirit and closer cooperation with Upsilon Gamma Chi.

Soroptimists

President, Elise Rosendale
Vice President, Shirley Stephenson
Secretary, Dolores Bettencourt

Proving that women are as much a part of the business world today as are the men, the Senior Soroptimists of Salinas, an organization of outstanding business women, have inspired and continued to sponsor a comparable organization in Salinas Junior College. Each month two girls of the junior group are invited to the downtown club for a luncheon meeting where by listening to prominent local women speak about their professions, they gain ideas of the opportunities for the college girl in various enterprises.

Pi Nu Sigma

President, Bertha Doan
Vice President, Bonnie Rusko
Secretary, Joyce Emery

A comparative newcomer to our fraternal chain of social organizations, Pi Nu Sigma, composed of girls majoring in nursing, has shown by its enthusiasm and cooperation that Salinas Junior College has taken a step in the direction of preparedness. This group of women interested in the art of healing, the Florence Nightingales of an uncertain future, is one means of proving to our community that the youth of today are a visionary and practical unit interested in the welfare of man.

Westminster

President, Arline Jones
Vice-President, Martin George
Secretary, Dorothea Zimmerman

A non-denominational organization, sponsored by the local Presbyterian Church, is the Westminster Club. It has proven itself a worthy asset to our college by its varied educational and religious programs including inspirational talks by the following clergymen: Rev. Ashton of St. Paul's, Rev. Ewan of Methodist Episcopal, and Rev. Erickson of First Baptist. Recreationally the club enjoyed picnics and at every meeting partook of refreshments provided by the United Presbyterian Missionary Society's beneficence.

Newman Club

President, George Bevan
Vice President, Edmund Leach
Secretary, Jacqueline Northrup

Dedicated to the furtherance of the Catholic faith among the students of the junior college, the Newman Club was one of the dominant spiritual leaders on the campus. It featured student and outside guest speakers at its meetings which were held every three weeks under the leadership of Johnny Banchero. The simplicity, fullness, and sincerity of its program made it one of the outstanding organizations of the college.

Rainbow

President, Gloria Dillard
Vice-President, Kay Carlson
Secretary, Nancy Geddes

Highlighted by a spectacular Mardi Gras, which was one of the shining lights of the school year, the Rainbow Club had a program which was packed with stellar events. The club also conducted bi-monthly meetings at which First Aid speakers furnished the principal interest. The Annual Tea for freshmen women and for the wives of the faculty, and the distribution of Easter baskets to the underprivileged rounded out the co-ed's colorful calendar.

Vice President, Emma Ghidinelli
Secretary, Jean Hull

We have "letter-women" at S. J. C. as well as "letter-men." Sports-minded W. A. A. members earn blocks and pins for extra-curricular participation in athletics. Interschool sports conferences and athletic meets provided the women a chance to compare techniques and viewpoints. Spring saw them at the San Jose State Swimming Meet. In addition to sponsoring the inter-college spring archery tournament, W. A. A. introduced noon nickelodeon dances which are destined to become traditional.

Vagabonds

President, John Buckley
Vice-President, Mary Helen Ferguson
Secretary, Jean Horsely

"When in Rome do as the Romans do," and when at Salinas do as the Vagabonds do. Such is the attitude taken by the majority of guys and gals attending this realm of higher learning. Comprised mostly of out-of-state students, for whom this organization was originally intended, the wanderlust vagabonds of Salinas Junior College have acquired illimitable comment in their efforts to promote and maintain a social atmosphere about the Panther's stomping grounds.

Young Farmers

President, Byron Pressley
Vice President, Ed Laughton
Secretary, Minoru Saguchi

"The world begins and ends with the plow" and in keeping with the agricultural tradition of the valley, the conscientious young male students interested in perpetuating this heritage of our forefathers have officially organized themselves into a club. The Young Farmers of Salinas Junior College are youths of surrounding counties with the same ideals in mind. Cooperation, production, and the desire to provide products for our nation are the traits and incentives of the future soil rejuvenators.

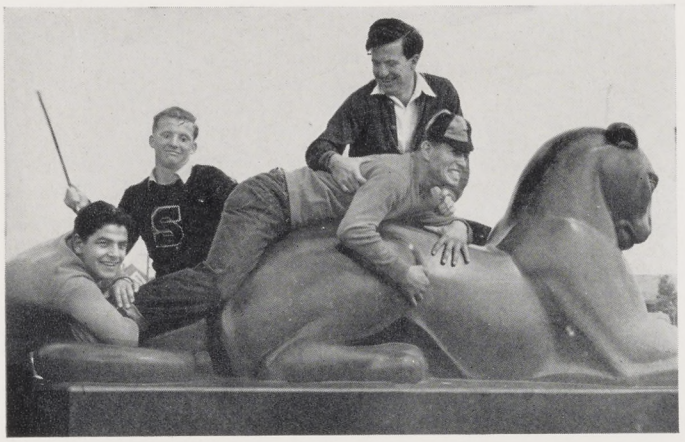
Block "S"



President, Mike Stewart
Vice-President, Art McChesney
Secretary, Bob Voris

"All violators will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law" were the words of Judge Mike Stewart as the Block "S" Club denounced all unspirited frosh. This facetious and friendly court scene was one of the cementing factors in instilling into the first yearmen the indestructable spirit which haunts the Panther's domain. Composed of all men who have earned their letters in athletics, this organization was instrumental in maintaining and implanting an exuberant school spirit.

Ski Club

President, Gordon Hughes
Vice President, Bob Wray
Secretary, Jean Claussen

Among the Junior College groups none is more tireless in seeking pleasure than the Ski Club whose members tingle at the crunch of snow. Thinking nothing of traveling great distances, these slalom-wise students, participating in the pastime of the penguins, hickory-stick-it at Sun Valley, Long Barn, Badger Pass, and Yosemite National Park. Sartorial elegance was conspicuous among sweaterwearing zestful enthusiasts who contributed a trophy to the college collection.

Japanese Club

President, Minoru Saguchi
Vice-President, Sakaye Namamura
Secretary, Mary Tsukamoto

Curtailment of Japanese activities on the Pacific Coast because of the severing of diplomatic relations with the Empire of the "Rising Sun" has warranted the abandonment of the Japanese Students Club of Salinas Junior College. Prior to our international involvement, this group of assiduous people contributed to the college calendar by sponsoring a number of social events.

Head Coach Tiny Hall

The 1941 football edition of the Salinas Panther entered the "A" conference of the Northern California Junior College league and managed to take a surprising second place behind champion San Mateo. Greatly responsible for the Panthers' surprising strength were Co-Captains Hank Klauke and Dick Voris, who shone each Friday night with continued brilliance. No one player could be singled out for special praise, however. Taking turns at starring seemed to be the strategy of the Salinas backs. Dexter Lanois, the Blonde Tracer Bullet from San Diego, Ed Towne, the "Dusky Ravager" from Gary, Indiana, and then Mel Padella, the "Hairless Hurricane" from Santa Cruz, would take turns leading the Panther grid destinies, with the result that every game was a hard-fought, thrill packed contest.

Dick Voris
Co-Captain

Sacramento

Salinas lost a heart-breaker to the northern Panthers when Richie Walter's try for extra point hit the cross bar and fell back onto the playing field. Sacramento blocked Lisk's punt and then passed for their score.

San Mateo

San Mateo's champions overpowered the Panthers with a startling passing attack which punched holes into every defense that Coach Hall could devise. Salinas sorely missed the services of their star center, Dick Voris.

Modesto

Ed Towne scored what proved to be the winning touchdown early in the fourth quarter on an end around. Henry Klauke, who was captain for the night, proved the brightest star of the game with his superlative work on both defense and offense.

San Jose State

The Panthers played three great quarters of football to lead the Spartan Babes 6-0, but in the final quarter, Salinas' line fell apart and allowed three San Jose scores. Di Orio suffered a torn ligament and was out for the season.

Stockton

In the first conference game of the season, Dexter Lanois went berserk to lead the Panthers to a stunning victory. In a superb display of speed, he returned the opening kickoff of the second half for seventy-five yards.

Mesa

Snow, slush, and zero weather prevented the Panthers from gathering up any steam at Grand Junction, Colorado. Mesa, showing tremendous power on both defense and offense, completely outclassed Salinas. Voris, Schiro, and Stewart shone for our side.

Basketball

Coach Ed Adams

Although they were reputed to have one of the most potent cage aggregations to represent Salinas in years, the Panther hoopsters were unable to get going in the tough Northern California Basketball Conference and the season's end found the team in the league cellar The Panthers waded victoriously through a blistering practice game schedule, reaching the semi-finals of Modesto's State tourney and being runners-up in Salinas' own Invitational Cage Circus. Captained by indefatigable Hank Klauke, the conference games saw an entirely different result as the Panthers suffered incredible last minute reversals after having led for most of the ball games.

Track

Salinas' track squad, although not maintaining the championship caliber that had marked Panther teams for the past few years, did perform creditably in the meets held. Not over a dozen men greeted Coach Hall on signup day but a few of these had imposing track careers behind them. Foremost among the signees was Frank Freeman, outstanding broad-jumper. Freeman, who leaped 24 feet 10 inches while in high school, also dabbles in the sprints and in the high jump. Other men who bid fair to be outstanding were Bill Mathews, pole-vault; Jack Cole, Kyman Kaplan, and Ed Townes, hurdles; Jeff Schmidt and Bob Garguilo, high jump; and Leo Hoag and Bud Guittierez, pole vault.

Baseball

After a year's absence from the conference, Salinas entered another of its fine baseball teams into league competition. Although the turnout was one of the smallest in years, Ed Adams managed to mold a good team around a trio of talented pitchers, Bill Armstrong, Pete Pedrazzi, and Winston DeMars. Armstrong proved to be one of the hardest hitters, besides taking care of the right-field position when not on the mound. DeMars, Klauke, Garcia, and Ly Smith were the only veterans returning.
